

Bing

The Supreme Court of India recently ruled against granting legal recognition to same-sex marriages in India . The court stated that it is beyond its scope and should be decided by Parliament . However, the court emphasized that queer relationships should not face discrimination by the state .